Glacier Sotheby's International Realty Represents Dennis Quaid's Ranch

Bozeman, Mont. (Oct. 14, 2011) – Glacier Sotheby's International Realty today announced it has listed Dennis Quaid's Ranch in Emigrant, Montana, for $14 million.

Located in the Paradise Valley of Southwest Montana, the ranch has an owners' residence, four guest houses, a ranch manager's home and horse facilities. The owners' residence is approximately 5,300 square feet, designed by Frank Cikan and featured in Architectural Digest in 2003. It has three bedrooms, three-and-a-half baths and overlooks Six Mile Creek and the Absaroka Mountain Range. The ranch is approximately 418 acres, just under two hours from Gallatin Field and less than 10 minutes to Chico Hot Springs.

“This extraordinary ranch offers fishing approximately two miles of both sides of Six Mile Creek and two ponds, horseback riding on the ranch and in the National Forest adjoining the ranch, incredible views and privacy,” said Vivian Bridaham, managing broker, Glacier Sotheby's International Realty. “Home to Warren Oates, Sam Peckinpah and Dennis Quaid for more than 30 years, this special place has been inhabited for thousands of years by Native Americans using it as an entrance to Yellowstone National Park. Historic gold mines are on the property which borders the Gallatin National Forest, within one mile of the Absaroka Beartooth Wilderness Area.”
